Outline of the National Institutes for Cultural Heritage

CONTENTS

In FY2017, which marked the 10th anniversary of its establishment, the NICH adopted a new logo. Logo concept: "Linkage"
The logo design combines knotted cords with a shape resembling the DNA double helix. The "knotted cords" represent linkage between people and cultures (i.e. cultural heritage), while the "DNA" represents linkage between past, present and future (i.e. cultural transmission). The logo represents the core mission of the NICH, which is to foster an in-depth understanding of "cultural DNA" and transmit awareness of the importance of cultural heritage to people all over the world.

MATSUMURA Keiji

President

Independent Administrative Institution
National Institutes for Cultural Heritage

(Director General, Nara National Research Institute for Cultural Properties)

With the enthronement of His Majesty the Emperor and the beginning of the Reiwa Era, the year 2019 has marked the start of a new epoch. The National Institutes for Cultural Heritage (NICH) wholeheartedly celebrate the dawning of this new era, and at the same time we are adopting a new approach to addressing various issues.

This year, 2019, is the final year of NICH's most recent four-year development plan and a number of important events are scheduled.

First, ICOM KYOTO 2019 (the 25th General Conference of the International Council of Museums) will be held in September 2019. Held every three years, this conference brings together museum professionals from all over the world to share museum-related knowledge and information. This will be the first time that the ICOM General Conference has been held in Japan, and the NICH has an important role to play as a member of the ICOM KYOTO 2019 Organizing Committee. The conference is a valuable opportunity to engage in discussions with museum professionals from over 140 countries and regions around the world, and we are encouraging as many people as possible to participate.

In addition, the 2020 Tokyo Olympics and Paralympics will make Japan a focus of global attention and interest next year. To take advantage of this opportunity, a Japan Cultural Expo has been launched this year to raise domestic and international awareness of Japan's history, culture, arts and traditional crafts. The theme for the Japan Cultural Expo is "Japanese people and nature." In order to help the many visitors from foreign countries who will be coming to Japan to experience the unique appeal of the beauty of Japan, the NICH will be playing an active part in the Japan Cultural Expo. We anticipate that, for the people of Japan, the Japan Cultural Expo will provide a marvelous opportunity to rediscover and strengthen awareness of Japanese culture and Japanese concepts of beauty. This year also sees the full-scale launch of the TSUMUGU (Weaving Beauty) Project, which has been organized through collaboration between Japan's Agency for Cultural Affairs, the Imperial Household Agency, and the Yomiuri Shimbun newspaper—the first project of its kind to be implemented through cooperation between the public and private sectors—and the aim of which is to establish and maintain a cycle of conservation, exhibition and restoration for Japan's cultural heritage, so as to ensure that Japan's beauty and culture can be safeguarded and handed down to future generations. The NICH is participating in the TSUMUGU Project.

In addition, in line with the Tohaku New Era Plan which was formulated in FY 2018, the Tokyo National Museum (TNM) is taking up the challenge of undertaking various experimental programs aimed at making TNM a museum that is open to the world, by realizing further enhancement in service quality, creating a more comfortable environment for museum-goers, and promoting the development of a multi-lingual environment within the museum. The NICH is working to promote the adoption of similar initiatives at other NICH institutions. We hope visitors will be impressed by the results of these new projects.

Responding to the amendment of the Act on Protection of Cultural Properties in April this year, we have launched new measures to realize the safeguarding and proper utilization of cultural properties in ways appropriate to this new era in which greater emphasis is placed on the effective conservation of cultural heritage. The National Center for the Promotion of Cultural Properties (CPCP) which was founded in July last year has put in place the necessary organizational structure and systems and is now fully operational.

At a time when disasters of various kinds have been occurring frequently throughout Japan, the National Task Force for the Japanese Cultural Heritage Disaster Risk Mitigation Network (CH-DRM Net, Japan), which has now been in existence for six years, is undertaking surveys and research on various topics relating to protecting cultural properties from disasters and mitigating the impact of disasters. Based on the results obtained in this research, the CH-DRM Net, Japan provides guidance and advice to local government authorities, museums, art galleries, shrines, temples, etc., and also liaises and collaborates with related government agencies, including the Agency for Cultural Affairs.

The NICH will be responding appropriately to the needs of this new era, and will be redoubling its efforts to proactively spread awareness of the value and appeal that Japan's cultural properties possess, and to promote more in-depth understanding of Japanese culture.

We look forward to receiving your continued support and assistance in the future.

Outline of the National Institutes for Cultural Heritage

The Independent Administrative Institution (IAI), National Institutes for Cultural Heritage, was formed in April 2007 through the merging of the IAI National Museums (Tokyo National Museum, Kyoto National Museum, Nara National Museum, and Kyushu National Museum) and the IAI National Research Institutes for Cultural Properties (Tokyo National Research Institute for Cultural Properties and Nara National Research Institute for Cultural Properties), all of which share the same mission: the conservation and utilization of cultural properties. With the addition of the International Research Centre for Intangible Cultural Heritage in the Asia-Pacific Region, which was established in October 2011, the National Institutes for Cultural Heritage now comprise a total of seven separate institutions.

Japan's cultural properties are the precious assets of the Japanese people. In order to preserve and utilize these properties more effectively and efficiently under unified management, each of the seven existing institutions plays the following roles:

Tokyo National Museum

As Japan's foremost museum in the humanities field, Tokyo National Museum collects, preserves, manages, and displays cultural properties from across Japan and other Asian regions, while also conducting research and providing educational programs.

Kyoto National Museum

Kyoto National Museum collects, preserves, manages, and displays cultural properties, while also conducting research and providing educational programs. The focus is on works from the Heian period to the Edo period, a time when Kyoto was the capital of Japan.

Nara National Museum

Nara National Museum collects, preserves, manages, and displays cultural properties, while also conducting research and providing education programs. The focus is Buddhist art and the cultural properties of Nara.

Kyushu National Museum

Kyushu National Museum collects, preserves, manages, and displays cultural properties, while also conducting research and providing educational programs. The focus is on cultural assets related to Japan's cultural exchanges with other Asian regions.

Tokyo National Research Institute for Cultural Properties

Tokyo National Research Institute for Cultural Properties conducts research on Japanese cultural properties, utilizing a variety of methods. In addition to publicizing and utilizing the results of this research, as an international center for cooperation, the institute also facilitates global research into the protection of cultural properties.

Nara National Institute for Cultural Properties

Located near the Nara Palace site, Nara National Research Institute for Cultural Properties conducts excavation and research projects related to the conservation and utilization of cultural heritage such as sites, buildings, and gardens, as well as cultural properties, preserved at major temples and shrines in the Nara and Kinki regions. The Institute also provides advice and cooperation for research projects conducted across Japan.

International Research Centre for Intangible Cultural Heritage in the Asia-Pacific Region

This institution promotes research that contributes to safeguarding intangible cultural heritage (ICH) in the Asia-Pacific region, and also collects and disseminates information relating to international trends in the safeguarding of ICH.

Projects of the National Institutes for Cultural Heritage

The Undertakings of the National Institutes for Cultural Heritage include:

Preservation and Transmission of Tangible Cultural Properties, and Utilization of Cultural Properties to Disseminate Japan's History and Traditional Culture Nationally and Internationally

(1) Collection and Preservation of Tangible Cultural Properties, and Transmission of Tangible Cultural Properties to Future Generations

As core institutions involved in the preservation and transmission of history and traditional culture, each museum collects objects according to its own individual collection policy to ensure that its collection is systematically and historically balanced.

We also work closely with the Agency for Cultural Affairs to encourage donations and long-term loans from private owners, utilizing the System of Enrolled Art Objects, for example, or improving the inheritance tax system to make donations of objects easier.

Japan's cultural properties are the precious assets of the Japanese people. In order to pass on this heritage to future generations, we implement thorough management of items in the collections, and make efforts to improve the environments for these items while working systematically to conserve them, with those requiring urgent treatment given priority. This work is carried out through the coordinated efforts of NICH's conservators and professionals of conservation science as well as specialists (both internal and external) in the fields of conservation science and restoration technology, using both traditional techniques and modern scientific methods. Conservation studios and other facilities also recognize the need to protect cultural properties from natural disasters, and are working with the government to make further preparations.

■Acquisition

We continually strive to acquire cultural properties through purchases and donations with the aim of: (1) building collections that are both systematically and historically balanced, and (2) preventing the dispersion of private collections and the export of tangible cultural properties from Japan. Furthermore, the four museums each accept long-term loans from temples, shrines, and private collectors in order to further enhance their distinctive regular exhibitions.

■Conservation and Restoration

Tangible cultural properties preserved in museum collections need to be conserved approximately once every 100 years. The Institutes carry out two levels of conservation work: minimal treatments that allow for the safe display and storage of the objects: and full-scale treatments, carried out systematically in accordance with the conditions of the objects.

(2) Exhibitions

We disseminate information both nationally and internationally to promote understanding of the history and traditional culture of Japan and other Asian regions. For this purpose, we hold attractive exhibitions and high-quality displays that reflect both visitor needs and the latest academic trends, while also taking into consideration the needs of international cultural exchange.

In addition, we are constantly striving to make our museums more visitor-friendly by extending opening hours and creating multilingual and accessible environments, with extensive information for visitors to enhance the overall museum experience. We are also making improvements to museum management in response to visitor feedback.

■Exhibitions

Each museum holds its own distinctive regular and special exhibitions to provide opportunities for visitors to engage with traditional art and archaeological objects, including National Treasures and Important Cultural Properties. We also collaborate with museums overseas to hold exhibitions that introduce a variety of cultures.

(3) Education and Outreach Activities

To promote understanding of the history and traditional culture of Japan and other Asian regions, we provide a variety of educational programs, such as lectures and workshops, in cooperation with schools and other educational institutions.

Furthermore, we work with universities to provide professional training and support volunteer activities with the aim of further improving our educational programs. We also implement training programs for museum professionals, conservators, and others.

We also utilize the internet to disseminate information about cultural properties, and publicize our exhibitions and educational activities through the collection, publication, and display of various types of information.

(4) Research on the Collection, Preservation, and Exhibition of Tangible Cultural Properties (Namely fine and applied arts), and Educational Activities

We conduct surveys and research relating to the collection, preservation, and exhibition of tangible cultural properties, as well as educational activities, on a systematic basis; organize international symposia to which leading researchers are invited; arrange for NICH staff to work at overseas research institutes and attend international conferences; and conduct research while accumulating the latest information.

The results obtained from our surveys and research are publicized using a variety of methods, including publications and the internet, thereby contributing to the transmission of cultural properties to the next generation and to the promotion of Japanese culture.

(5) Contribution to Museum-related Activities in Japan and Abroad

When conditions allow, we loan items from our collections to museums in Japan and abroad so that they may be viewed more widely by both domestic and international audiences. We are also actively engaged in exchanging information and providing guidance and advice to other museums.

2 Implementing Research and Collaborative Projects for the Protection of Cultural Properties and Overseas Cultural Heritage

We undertake the following types of surveys and research to contribute to the formation of the framework of knowledge and techniques required to facilitate the transmission of priceless cultural properties to future generations.

(1) Research Leading to New Ideas

We are engaged in undertaking fundamental and systematic research relating to cultural properties (including collaborative research and research-related exchange with other organizations, both in Japan and overseas) and also surveys and research that contribute to the preservation and effective utilization of cultural properties. The results achieved through these surveys and research have led to an increase in the amount of basic data available, facilitated the accumulation of academic knowledge, and provided the basic information needed to support the designation as cultural properties, while also contributing, at individual and collective levels, to the planning and establishment of cultural property preservation measures by national and local government bodies, as well as the evaluation of cultural properties.

(2) Basic Research for the Improvement of Research and Development Utilizing Science and Technology

We undertake the following types of research and development to support the development of research on the value and preservation of cultural properties:

- ① We contribute to the enhancement of the accuracy and effectiveness of cultural property survey methods through the promotion of R&D work such as the application of science and technology. We also contribute towards the clarification of the background (cultural, historical, and natural environment) against which cultural properties came into being, and the process of change in this background over time.
- ② As a core research center for research relating to cultural property preservation science and restoration techniques, restoration materials, and production techniques, we work for the development of new techniques for cultural property research, making use of the latest scientific and technological developments, and promote cutting-edge surveys and research with the aim of fostering joint research and research-related exchange with other institutions both in Japan and overseas.

(3) International Collaboration Relating to the Preservation of Cultural Heritage

We promote the acquisition and analysis of information from abroad regarding cultural heritage, and also promote cooperative programs for the protection of this heritage. Additionally, we create human resources development and technology transfer programs for the conservation and restoration of cultural properties. These programs involve training and the dispatch of specialists. All of the aforementioned endeavors—which are pursued while utilizing the knowledge, technology, and experience that Japan has for the protection of cultural heritage—are contributions of international importance. Moreover, through cooperation with researchers and other specialists in the Asia-Pacific region, we conduct research for the protection of intangible cultural heritage endangered by natural disasters and other threats, and promote protection of this heritage on an international scale. Through such activities for the protection of humanity's shared assets, we contribute to cultural exchange between countries and to mutual understanding.

(4) Collecting and Collating Information Relating to Cultural Properties, and Publicizing and Utilizing the Results of Surveys and Research

We are working to promote the digitalization of information relating to cultural properties and expand related specialist archives, as well as organizing public lectures and international symposia, and expanding the content included on the websites of the individual facilities that make up the NICH, with the aim of furthering the collection, collation and preservation of information relating to cultural properties, and of ensuring that such outcomes are widely publicized and disseminated. We are also working to expand the displays of survey and research results held at the Nara Palace Site Museum, Exhibition Room of Fujiwara Imperial Site, and Asuka Historical Museum of the Nara National Research Institute for Cultural Properties, so as to provide the general public with a more in-depth understanding of related areas.

(5) Provision of Training for, and Collaboration with, Local Government Authorities in Relation to Cultural Properties

While contributing to the enhancement of knowledge and techniques through the implementation of training tailored to the needs of local government authorities by making effective use of the results obtained in past surveys and research, we also undertake cultivation of core human resources that will play key roles in the preservation of Japan's cultural properties in the future, through collaborative education projects in conjunction with university graduate schools. After the Great East Japan Earthquake of 2011, we played a central role in activities conducted to rescue cultural properties at the request of the Agency for Cultural Affairs. Making effective use of this experience, we are also undertaking research projects and capacity building aimed at putting in place a nationwide system for coordination and collaboration so as to develop a network for safeguarding and rescuing cultural properties in the event of future large-scale disasters such as major earthquakes.

3 New Projects

We are undertaking the following new initiatives, with the aim of properly exercising our policy implementation function as Japan's national center for museums and cultural property research, and of ensuring that we implement policies effectively and efficiently.

(1) National Center for the Promotion of Cultural Properties

In July 2018, The National Center for the Promotion of Cultural Properties (CPCP) was formally established in the headquarters of the National Institutes for Cultural Heritage, to serve as the national center for the display and utilization of Japan's cultural properties. While carefully maintaining the right balance between conservation and use of cultural properties, the CPCP is committed to providing opportunities for people at home and abroad to learn about Japan's priceless cultural heritage through strengthening support for museums, galleries, and other venues.

The CPCP's core activities are as follows.

- 1) Development of content and trial projects to increase public awareness and interest in cultural properties

The CPCP collaborates with private and public organizations to create reproductions of cultural properties using advanced technologies such as virtual reality, augmented reality and 8K resolution video. These reproductions provide the public with user-friendly formats for interacting with and learning about Japan's cultural properties.

- 2) Promotion of loaning out items held in the collections of Japan's National Museums and related consultations

The CPCP encourages regional and local museums to exhibit the cultural properties in the collections of Japan's National Museums and provides consultations to assist them.

- 3) Improving digital resources and availability of information in Japan and abroad

The CPCP aims to improve the user-friendliness of NICH's digital resources by consolidating those currently maintained separately by each national museum and research institute. These resources are being consolidated into the "e-Museum" website, a website that presents high-resolution images of approximately 1,000 National Treasures and other important cultural properties from the collections of the National Museums, and "ColBase," a website that allows users to search all of the items in the NICH-affiliated institutions' collections.

- 4) Consultation, advice, and support about conserving cultural properties
The CPCP provides research assistance, consultation services, and general inquiry assistance regarding conservation environments of museums. The CPCP also holds workshops and seminars about storage environments and personnel development to give other museums a reliable resource for conservation-related issues.
- 5) In addition, as part of our fund-raising activities, we also implement initiatives to raise funds from a wide range of sources to support projects relating to the conservation and utilization of cultural properties.

Providing consultation on conservation environments

(2) National Task Force for the Cultural Heritage Disaster Risk Mitigation Network (CH-DRM Net), Japan

In order to safeguard cultural properties from the kinds of disasters that have been occurring so frequently in recent years, we are strengthening collaboration with local government authorities and specialist organizations. When a disaster occurs, we cooperate with local government authorities and twenty-four specialist organizations to promptly collect information. We cooperate closely with the Agency of Cultural Affairs, dispatching experts and providing information with to minimize any damage caused by a disaster. We provide advice based on our research into emergency management and conservation methods for disaster-affected cultural properties. We are committed to building a stronger framework for disaster risk management for cultural properties. Our efforts include holding symposia and organizing training programs and other programs for cultural heritage officials at local government authorities along with activities to enhance awareness among the general public.

(3) Japan Cultural Expo

Taking advantage of the opportunity provided by the 2020 Tokyo Olympics and Paralympics, Japan's Agency for Cultural Affairs is joining forces with related local government authorities, cultural institutions, and other groups to organize the Japan Cultural Expo, which will showcase Japanese aesthetics and values both domestically and internationally. As part of the Japan Cultural Expo, art exhibitions, performing arts shows, and cultural and artistic festivals that embody the Japanese ideal of beauty will be held throughout Japan, making this the largest project of its kind ever implemented.

The NICH will also be participating in the Japan Cultural Expo, organizing special exhibitions, thematic exhibitions and events to promote the diversity and broad appeal of Japanese culture, both within Japan and overseas. These activities will also contribute to handing down and further developing Japanese arts and culture, and further enhance international understanding of Japan.

(4) ICOM KYOTO 2019

The International Council of Museums (ICOM) is the world's largest non-governmental organization dedicated to promoting the advancement and development of the museum sector. In September 2019, the ICOM General Conference (which is held once every three years) will be held in Japan for the first time, in Kyoto. The participants at ICOM KYOTO 2019 will include many museum professionals from all over the world. Besides expert-panel discussions and meetings for all General Conference participants, there will also be various study tours and events for the general public. The NICH is assisting event organizers by dispatching personnel to the ICOM KYOTO 2019 Office to assist the ICOM KYOTO 2019 Organizing Committee, established under the Japanese Association of Museums.

Tokyo National Museum

As Japan's foremost museum in the humanities field, Tokyo National Museum collects, preserves, manages, and displays cultural properties from across Japan and other Asian regions, while also conducting research and providing educational programs.

ZENIYA Masami
Executive Director
Tokyo National Museum

The Tokyo National Museum was established in 1872, making it the oldest museum in Japan. The Museum's collection is comprised of more than 119,000 cultural properties, including many National Treasures and Important Cultural Properties. We collect, restore, conserve, and display tangible cultural properties from across Japan and other Asian regions. We also conduct research on these objects and promote understanding of art through educational programs.

The Museum seeks to further enhance its culturally-oriented exhibitions by displaying some of the finest objects and holding events tailored to the seasons. From fiscal year 2017, the Museum's opening hours were extended until 21:00 on Fridays and Saturdays throughout the year, with the aim of providing both foreign tourists and domestic visitors with more opportunities to view the Museum's exhibits; the Museum will also be holding a variety of special events on Friday and Saturday evenings to further enhance the experience of evening visitors.

In addition to exhibitions, the Museum also offers a wide range of programs, including hands-on activities, guided tours, and workshops. Our hands-on art-making workshops for students help them to deepen their understanding of cultural treasures.

We will continue striving to make the Tokyo National Museum more enjoyable for everyone, including children and adults, as well as visitors from other countries.

■Acquisition, Conser, and Restoration

The Museum seeks to create a comprehensive display of Asian cultural properties with a focus on Japan through the acquisition of works of art by purchase, donation, and loan. We also carry out a variety of collection management measures to allow deteriorated objects to be safely exhibited in the future. These measures include enhancing gallery and storage environments, improving display and transportation methods, conducting collection assessment, as well as performing about 30 full restorations and 430 emergency treatments of works annually.

■Education

To provide a better museum experience for visitors, we offer opportunities for as many people as possible to get to know the museum, and help them to develop a deeper understanding of Japanese and Asian culture. Through collaboration with schools and developing volunteer activities, we strive to establish a pioneering model for engaging museum projects and promote effective educational programs that reflect our role as a leading museum in Japan.

Kyoto National Museum

The Kyoto National Museum collects, preserves, manages, and exhibits cultural properties, while also conducting research and educational activities. It focuses on cultural properties from the Heian period to the Edo period, a time when Kyoto was the capital of Japan.

SASAKI Johei

Executive Director
Kyoto National Museum

Kyoto served as Japan's Imperial capital for over 1,000 years, from the relocation of the capital in 794, which marked the beginning of the Heian period, right through to the Meiji Restoration in 1868.

The Kyoto National Museum showcases numerous cultural properties that testify to the glory of the city's cultural heritage, and presents Japan's traditional culture to the world through various activities. We will continue to work towards the realization of the museum's mission of spreading awareness of Japanese traditional culture throughout the world. To this end, the museum strives to encourage people in all walks of life to take an interest in and visit the museum. Our aim is to create a "people-centric museum" that is also a "museum with deep roots in the local community." We would like our museum to be a place for education, a place where people can relax, a place for lifelong learning, and also a place that will attract both domestic and overseas tourists. The new Heisei Chishinkan Wing opened in September 2014. We anticipate that the new facilities and functions of the Heisei Chishinkan Wing will help to make the Kyoto National Museum even more popular with visitors.

This year will also see the much-anticipated ICOM KYOTO 2019 (the 25th General Conference of the International Council of Museums) which will be held in Kyoto. As the host city's National Museum, we will be contributing towards making this event a resounding success; at the same time, we are aiming to ensure that the benefits from holding of ICOM KYOTO continue after the conference itself has come to a close, by doing our utmost to take advantage of this opportunity to bring about the beginning of a new era for museums in Japan in 2019, the first year of the new Imperial era Reiwa.

Collection, Preservation, and Restoration of Cultural Properties

Since the museum's establishment, numerous treasures from historical temples and shrines have been entrusted to the Kyoto National Museum. Meanwhile, the number of cultural properties in the collection has increased yearly through purchases and donations, with a focus on art or archaeological items related to Kyoto culture. These cultural properties must be restored and preserved appropriately so that they may be enjoyed and appreciated by future generations. The Conservation Center for Cultural Properties, the first comprehensive conservation facility for cultural properties in Japan, was established in 1980 to meet that need.

Restoration work underway in the Conservation Center for Cultural Properties

Educational Activities

We undertake a variety of activities via our exhibitions, web-site, and outreach to schools, in order to help people learn more about the museum's exhibitions and collections, and to stimulate interest and concern for cultural properties.

○Activities held to enhance understanding of exhibition contents and exhibits

- The museum holds various lectures and seminars including the Saturday Lectures and Commemorative Lectures. It also operates the "Museum Cart" hands-on experience booths (staffed by "Kyo-Haku Navigator" volunteers), and implements various types of workshops, as well as distributing museum guide brochures, explanatory sheets, and the "Museum Dictionary," etc.

○Activities held to stimulate interest in cultural properties

- The museum organizes summer lectures, symposia and other lecture events, as well as arranging visits to elementary schools and junior high schools in Kyoto by "Cultural Property Sommeliers" making use of high-resolution digital reproductions of important works of art (Cultural Heritage Familiarization Classes), and organizing workshops in locations outside the museum.

○The museum works closely with educational institutions, organizing collaborative events.

- The collaboration between the museum and the university sector includes the Campus Members System, the giving of lectures on historical, cultural and sociological topics by our curators at the Graduate School of Human and Environmental Studies, Kyoto University, and the training of "Cultural Property Sommeliers," as well as the holding of training sessions for visit-based learning activities and teacher education.

○Support for volunteer activities

- Implementation of the "Kyo-Haku Navigator" and "Cultural Property Sommeliers" systems, and training of "Kyo-Haku Navigator" and "Cultural Property Sommelier" volunteers.

Research

Since 1979, the Museum has been implementing an ongoing, comprehensive survey of cultural assets owned by old temples and shrines in the Kinki region of Japan, centered on Kyoto. As part of these efforts, over a four-year period starting in 2016, we have been implementing a Comprehensive Research Program on the Buddhist Culture and History of the Kawachi Region, with KAKENHI (government-funded grants-in-aid for scientific research) funding support. This program involves conducting a survey of the cultural heritage of shrines and temples in the Osaka and Kawachi regions. The Museum also continues to undertake research on its collections; the research results are reflected in the Museum's displays and published in the Kyoto National Museum Bulletin.

Other Activities

A variety of special events are held to encourage more people to visit the Museum.

○Rakugo at the Museum

Kyoto National Museum has launched the "Rakugo at the Museum" project, whereby performances of Rakugo (traditional comic storytelling, which originated in Kyoto and is an important aspect of Japanese traditional culture) are held on a regular basis.

Nara National Museum

Nara National Museum collects, preserves, manages and displays cultural properties, while also conducting research and providing educational programs. The focus is on Buddhist art and the cultural properties of Nara.

MATSUMOTO Nobuyuki

Executive Director
Nara National Museum

Since its opening in 1895, with the cooperation of temples and shrines of the Nara region, the Nara National Museum has been engaged in collecting, preserving, and conducting research and educational programs on cultural properties mainly associated with Buddhism. Through these activities, the museum has introduced to the public the high artistic value and historical background of Japanese Buddhist culture, unique in its fusion with indigenous beliefs. Keeping in mind that various cultural properties are tied together in an organic whole with the historical and cultural landscape of Nara, we will continuously strive to promote the museum's international activities and the more effective use of information technology in order to reach a wide range of people as a conveyor of Nara's culture.

■ Collection, Preservation, and Restoration of Cultural Properties

We strive to collect tangible cultural properties, which are valuable assets for the people of Japan, by purchase, donation and loan.

We work to maintain the environment for our collections with meticulous care, by constantly controlling the temperature and humidity in our exhibition and storage areas.

Most Japanese cultural properties are made of extremely fragile materials such as paper and wood. Therefore, the museum must take proactive steps to preserve these objects for future generations. For this reason, in 2002, we established the Conservation Center for Cultural Properties to handle restoration projects by restorers.

Kyushu National Museum

Kyushu National Museum collects, preserves, manages and displays cultural properties, while also conducting research and providing educational programs. The focus is on cultural properties related to Japan's cultural exchanges with other Asian regions.

SHIMATANI Hiroyuki
Executive Director
Kyushu National Museum

Kyushu, the westernmost main island of Japan, which is situated close to continental Asia, has been the stage for vibrant exchanges of people and objects since ancient times. Delegations from overseas were welcomed at the Dazaifu Government Office, which was situated near the museum's current location. This historical background, and the aspirations of the people of Kyushu, led to the establishment, in 2005 in Dazaifu City, Fukuoka, of a national museum that focuses on the development of Japanese culture from the perspective of Japan's contacts and exchange with surrounding Asian regions.

The Museum has now received a cumulative total of over 16 million visitors since it first opened. The last few years have seen a pronounced increase in the number of visitors from China, Korea, Vietnam and Thailand.

In the future, the Museum will continue to carry out a wide range of research work and other activities aimed at furthering mutual understanding between Asian cultures, while also striving to be a museum that is relevant to, and of value to, the local community.

Collection, Preservation and Restoration of Cultural Properties

● Collection

The Museum puts an emphasis on collecting cultural heritage such as fine art, decorative art, archeological materials, historical documents and folk materials that help visitors more easily understand the cultural exchanges between Japan and the rest of Asia as well as the origins of Japanese culture. Moreover, in an effort to further improve displays and exhibitions, we proactively invite temples, shrines and private individuals to donate or entrust their cultural properties to us.

● Preservation

The "storage rooms" of the Museum are where important cultural properties are preserved and stored. They feature a double-walled structure, designed to prevent external air from outside the Museum from directly reaching the cultural properties, and are located in the heart of the building to minimize changes in temperature and humidity. The air conditioning facilities also utilize a constant temperature humidistat, which allows the temperature and humidity of the storage area to be constantly maintained at more or less the same level. Additionally, the walls and ceiling of each storage room are made from materials procured from local suppliers in Kyushu, such as cedar, to help ensure an appropriate humidity level without overly depending on air conditioning devices. The Museum was constructed as a seismically isolated structure, to prevent cultural properties from damage caused such as by toppling over during earthquakes. The building does not receive a direct impact in the event of an earthquake, and this helps protect the priceless cultural properties located inside.

● Restoration

The six conservation and restoration facilities at the Museum (respectively specializing in: the production of paper and other materials used for repair; historical materials, calligraphy and documents; paintings; sculptures; archaeological artifacts; and lacquerware) work in collaboration with the Museum's Science Division, combining traditional methods with scientific research technology. The staff, well experienced in the restoration of Japan's designated cultural properties, conduct projects actively through discussions with curators from fields such as history, art, decorative arts, archaeology and other related areas. The latest technological equipment such as fluorescent X-ray analyzing devices and X-ray CT scanners are also being actively utilized in the scientific analysis of cultural properties to be restored.

●Department of Planning and Coordination

The work of the Department of Planning and Coordination is assigned to five sections: the Planning and Coordination Section, the Data and Information Section, the International Cooperation Section, the Exhibition Section and the Photography Section. These sections plan and organize professional training programs for cultural heritage workers at local government agencies and other organizations, organize data systems and enhance related databases, arrange international joint research projects and engage in international cooperation on archaeological sites, exhibit research results at the Nara Palace Site Museum, and carry out photography and the development of new technology.

●Department of Cultural Heritage

The Department of Cultural Heritage consists of the Historical Document Section, the Architectural History Section, the Cultural Landscape Section and the Sites Management Research Section. These sections conduct specialist and comprehensive research in the following areas respectively: calligraphy, ancient books and historical documents; historical and traditional architecture; cultural landscapes; and the maintenance of archaeological sites and historical gardens. The research activities conducted by each section contribute, in a practical manner, to governmental activities concerning the protection of cultural properties, such as the designation, selection, registration, conservation and management of properties. The Department also collaborates with, and provides advice for, local public entities in regard to cultural property administration.

●Department of Imperial Palace Sites Investigations

The Department of Imperial Palace Sites Investigations is organized in five sections: the Archaeology Sections 1, 2 and 3, the History Section, and the Architectural Feature Section. These sections undertake interdisciplinary research on the basis of archaeological excavations of ancient palaces, temples, tombs located in the Heijo area and in the Asuka and Fujiwara area. The research results are publicized through presentations, reports and exhibitions; this research also contributes to the preservation and effective utilization of these archaeological remains.

[Department of Imperial Palace Sites Investigations (Heijo)]

This Department is in charge of excavation and research at the Nara Palace Site (Special Historic Site), where the imperial palace and government offices were located in the Nara period (710-784). Systematic research has been in progress since 1959 and over one-third of the 130 hectare site has been excavated and surveyed so far. The finds from excavation at the sites of the palace and ancient temples, and such as architectural remains, wooden tablets (used for written documents), earthenware vessels and ceramic tiles, have been verified with reference to historical records; this empirical research on the Nara period undertaken by the Department has won widespread plaudits. The Department also provides the results of its research on the Nara Palace Site to the Ministry of Land, Infrastructure, Transport and Tourism (MLIT) as basic data to support the maintenance of the national Nara Palace Site Historical Park.

[Department of Imperial Palace Sites Investigations (Asuka and Fujiwara)]

The Department is in charge of excavation and research on the Asuka and Fujiwara area that constituted Japan's political, economic and cultural center during the period between the 7th and early 8th centuries when the Japanese state was coming into being. The sites in the Asuka district include palaces and the residences of elite clans the sites of temples such as Asukadera temple (the oldest Buddhist temple in Japan) a workshop that produced ancient coins and glass a water clock and various tombs. To the north lies the site of the Fujiwara capital, the first large-scale planned city in Japan, covering a vast area of more than five square kilometers. The interdisciplinary, empirical research being conducted based on the excavations of these sites in the Asuka and Fujiwara areas has made a major contribution towards helping to clarify the historical record of the Asuka period.

Nara National Research Institute for Cultural Properties, an organization that engages in the study of tangible cultural heritage, has conducted excavation research at the Nara and Fujiwara Palace sites, investigated cultural objects (such as historical documents, ancient architecture and gardens) and has also made efforts to preserve the Asuka region through its research and exhibition programs. These activities contribute to academic exchanges, international support and the study of cultural heritage in Japan and abroad. For example, they have resulted in ongoing joint research partnerships with institutes in China and Korea. We also endeavor to develop new excavation technology and research methods as well as to provide technical training for local government specialists.

Our methods of preservation, restoration and maintenance that we developed to protect historical sites are not only appreciated by researchers in Japan, but are also utilized in excavations globally. Our research activities are supported by our own interdisciplinary joint research in different fields. It is our responsibility to maximize the results of our efforts in the research and preservation of cultural properties.

The Dendro-chronological Dating Section uses the methods of dendrochronology to advance applied research on techniques for determining the age and origin of wooden cultural heritage items, and for determining how they were made, etc. The Archaeological Research Methodology Section develops surveying and measurement techniques, with a particular focus on the surveying and measurement of archaeological data, with the aim of furthering the development and effective utilization of methods for researching cultural heritage and archaeology; this Section also undertakes disaster archaeology surveys and research.

●Asuka Historical Museum

The Asuka Historical Museum, a facility that showcases the history and culture of the Asuka Period, was established in 1975 following a decision made by the Japanese Cabinet. Besides the Museum's regular exhibitions, which have thematic displays relating to palaces, stone structures, tombs and temple sites, etc., visitors can also see the reconstructed portion of the eastern cloister of Yamada-dera Temple and objects excavated in and around this site. The Museum holds Special Exhibitions in spring and autumn and Feature Exhibitions in summer and winter, with displays focused on the history and cultural heritage of the Asuka Period, displays that present the results of the wide-ranging research undertaken by the Nara National Research Institute for Cultural Properties in an easy-to-understand way, displays featuring photographs of cultural heritage items, etc. The Museum also hosts lectures, participatory activities, etc.

International Research Centre for Intangible Cultural Heritage in the Asia-Pacific Region (IRCI)

IWAMOTO Wataru

Director-General
International Research
Centre for Intangible
Cultural Heritage in the Asia-Pacific Region

At the 35th Session of UNESCO General Conference of October 2009, approval was given to Japan to establish an international research centre for intangible cultural heritage in the Asia-Pacific region. After this approval, the Japanese government concluded an agreement with UNESCO in August 2010, and established the International Research Centre for Intangible Cultural Heritage in the Asia-Pacific Region (IRCI) in Sakai City in October 2011, as a Category 2 Centre under the auspices of UNESCO (institutions that serve to contribute to the achievement of UNESCO's strategic objectives).

IRCI's objectives are to promote the UNESCO Convention for the Safeguarding of the Intangible Cultural Heritage (ICH) and its implementation, and to enhance the safeguarding of ICH through instigating and coordinating research in the Asia-Pacific region. Today, many elements of ICH are endangered all over the world due to various factors. The safeguarding of ICH is now undeniably an urgent issue. IRCI collaborates with universities and research institutions in Japan and the Asia-Pacific region to promote research on the practices and methodologies of ICH safeguarding.

■ Activity Plan for FY 2019

IRCI promotes research as an international research hub for ICH safeguarding in the Asia-Pacific region while contributing to its enhancement using Japan's long-term experience in cultural heritage management. The activities' foci are as follows:

1. Promoting Research for ICH Safeguarding
2. Conducting Research on Endangered ICH
3. Cooperating with Sakai City to Promote ICH

In FY 2019, IRCI will conduct the following projects.

● Promoting Research for ICH Safeguarding

1. Research Data Collection
Overall, 32 countries have been surveyed as of March 2019 and the data collected were added into IRCI's research database. IRCI published a report on the project in March 2019. In FY2019-2021, IRCI will systematically collect information on UNESCO's Convention for the Safeguarding of ICH and related research, in collaboration with designated research organisations in the Asia-Pacific region.
2. Research Database Improvement
To ensure that the research information from relevant literature, experts and institutions collected in the past years is widely available, IRCI has been managing an online research database since September 2014, which comprised 2,550 entries as of March 2019 (<https://www.irci.jp/ichdb/>). In FY2019, IRCI will review the database functions and usability for database improvement.
3. Multi-disciplinary Study on ICH's Contribution to Sustainable Development: Focusing on Education
In FY 2018-2019, IRCI is implementing a project to promote the contribution of ICH towards the realisation of Goal 4 of Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) focusing on education. In FY2018, IRCI created guidelines which introduced ICH into the field of education in cooperation with the National Commission for Culture and the Arts in the Philippines, the Vietnam Museum of Ethnology, and the Vietnam Institute of Educational Sciences. In FY2019, these guidelines will be applied to formal and non-formal education settings. IRCI will verify the effectiveness of the guidelines through various monitoring processes.
4. Researchers Forum
IRCI will organise an international forum to discuss the status, role and contributions of research for ICH safeguarding. IRCI will publish proceedings as one outcome of the project.

●Conducting Research on Endangered ICH

Study of Emergency Protection of ICH in Conflict-Affected Countries in Asia

This project, which is currently in the process of implementation (FY2017-2020), examines ICH under conflict-affected situations, and specifies the risk factors that threaten the viability of ICH. In FY2018, IRCI completed data collection and surveys on current ICH sites that are particularly threatened by extinction in Sri Lanka, Timor-Leste, and Afghanistan. In FY2019, IRCI will conduct further studies to identify possible safeguarding measures for ICH, in cooperation with partner organisations.

●Cooperating with Sakai City for Promoting ICH

IRCI widely disseminates information and a clear vision of ICH to the Japanese people, in addition to providing them with various opportunities to learn about ICH in cooperation with Sakai City; those opportunities include IRCI panel displays in Sakai City Museum. Sakai City and the National Institutes for Cultural Heritage have been co-hosting an annual symposium on cultural heritage since FY2015. At this event, IRCI's information panels are also displayed and publications are distributed. In FY2019, this event will be held on 21 July at Tokyo National Museum.

●Communications and Publicity

Recently, IRCI published new leaflets and brochures to present to the public its research projects as well as its activities and information related to ICH. We also released information on our website, which is compatible with smartphones and tablets in terms of its design and content, and frequently update it with new information. Further, IRCI published the following publications in FY2018 to disseminate information and the results of its activities.

1. Brochure of IRCI (Japanese and English)
2. Leaflet of IRCI (Japanese and English)
3. Proceedings of the Asia-Pacific Regional Workshop on Intangible Cultural Heritage and Natural Disasters (English)

○Financial Donations and Cultural Property Donations

[Financial Donations]

Independent Administrative Institutions are mainly administered through national grants for operational costs and facilities improvement. However, difficult financial conditions and the streamlining of operations makes it necessary to receive outside funds as well. The National Institutes for Cultural Heritage is no exception and we also need to secure other funding sources besides income from admission fees. For these reasons, we welcome financial support from a wide range of organizations and individuals.

The National Institutes for Cultural Heritage has been designated by the National Tax Agency as a Special Public-Interest Promotion Corporation. This means that donations to our institutions (by organizations or individuals) are eligible for more generous income and corporate tax deductions than donations to regular private entities.

▶Income tax

Individuals who donate to a Special Public-Interest Promotion Corporation are eligible for a partial income tax deduction through the "Donation Deduction" system.

A FY2010 amendment to the tax law reduced the minimum annual tax-deductible donation amount from 5,000 yen to 2,000 yen, so any individual who donates more than 2,000 yen annually to Special Public-Interest Promotion Corporations will be eligible for a tax deduction. As a result, a donor will be able to deduct a donation amount of up to 40% of total income (minus 2,000 yen) when calculating income tax.

*Please note that tax deductions for donations may also be available with respect to individual Resident Tax, depending on the regulations adopted by the local authority for the area where the individual taxpayer is officially resident.

▶Corporate tax

When donating to a Special Public-Interest Promotion Corporation, corporate entities can count the donation amount as a deductible expense separate from other general donations. Furthermore, the reform of the tax system in 2011 raised the ceiling for the amount of donations that could be included as deductible expenses. As a result, the maximum amount of donations that can be counted as special deductible expenses = (amount of capital × 0.375 (formerly 0.25) + 6.25% of income (formerly 5%)) × 1/2 (Where the business year covers a period of less than one full calendar year, the calculation must be performed on a pro-rata basis according to a specified number of months. Also, please note that the calculation formula is different in the case of corporations that do not have capital stock (such as NPOs, etc.)

[Cultural Property Donations]

The National Institutes for Cultural Heritage is engaged in the preservation, management, research and display of cultural properties. In addition to purchasing these cultural properties systematically, we also accept donations from individuals or organizations.
